BOOK LAUNCH – What Lies beneath

What Lies Beneath is a series of images taken in an ancient woodland, which are accompanied the authors poetry.

The images were photographed over a period of reflection by the photographer on the behaviour of her local community. She noticed that she and many other incomers to her locality were often not accepted by the 'locals', despite time spent in a place and contribution to their community.

Conversely in the ancient woodland community, as the images share, diversity abounds and all species are actively supportive of others and inclusive, living together harmoniously. This situation prevails across the world in many localities and highlighting it could enhance progress.

She invites you to reflect through her images and poetry on the nature of community,

What lies here beneath the willing emerald wrapping, accepting their collective realm?
What lies elsewhere beneath community spirit, concealed but festering?

Niki is an emerging fine art photographer with a particular interest in community. Her work has been exhibited at the Glasgow Gallery of Photography, The Shutter Hub Yearbook 2024 and in a feature article over two pages in the Suboart Magazine.
